Research & Development

Trends

Toni Plastic Industries studies the actual cultural and social phenomena as currently markets trends generators in fashion and design.

Customers request and expect an emotional connection with their brands and their products, and they judge and penalize them. They want the brands help and consolidate decisions that establish our lifestyle.

So Toni Plastic Industries knows what their customers want and consider them as relevant and reference factors. Through a regular process of marketing and branding we have developed the need to understand the markets, sectors, professionals and groups who are creators, followers of trends and values ??of the time.

New Materials

The needs of the environment in the plastics industry require the continuous development of new products in order to maintain and improve Toni Plastic Industries competitive position. The basic aspects of product innovation are mainly related to promoting new features and generate greater added value through aesthetics.

However, to achieve these objectives it is necessary to have an ongoing research of trends in the markets, not only in regard to finished product, but with the availability of materials and machinery in order to achieve the same in competitive conditions.

The axes of new product development for the sector has three basic aspects: the care and respect for the environment, a diversification process in which new materials enter to configure the product finish and modernization of the same (not just in terms of benefits but in automating its use), while taking into account trends and consumer tastes.

New Technologies

The Research and Development department is the engine of the company. Over the past decades we have managed to generate the significant growth and we are continually working to develop innovative solutions in our areas of expertise.

Our interdisciplinary team develops several challenges that have emerged from the need to give customers alternatives to the new demands of quality, design, PACKAGING and transportation. Our philosophy has allowed us to provide more and better solutions for all needs in many sectors.
